The name La Scolca is synonymous worldwide with Gavi, a superior dry white wine from Piedmont. During the period from 1917 to 1919, the estate came into the ownership of the Soldati family. La Scolca is the oldest winery in the region that is still managed by the same family. The wines of La Scolca are internationally acclaimed, and the Gavi dei Gavi 'Black Label' was even the house wine of Queen Elizabeth.

BORGOGNO 'NO NAME' DOCG 75

Nebbiolo, Piemonte | Violets, roses, peppery

To ensure the quality of the wine, it undergoes thorough scrutiny by the authorities. However, this meticulous process sometimes leads to bureaucracy. Borgogno experienced this firsthand when they submitted their Barolo wine a few years ago for the coveted 'Barolo DOCG' designation. The harvest was bottled in stages, and each time, a bottle was sent for inspection. The first two bottles were approved, but the third was rejected. Interestingly, all three bottles contained identical contents. In protest, they decided to bottle the wine under the name 'No Name.'
